Yahya al-Hamwi is being treated at the centre for patients with cardiac arrest who were killed or injured during recent bombardments, but his irregular heart beat has worsened and he is close to death. Among the injured people housed at the centre are women and children who have been subjected to systematic rapes by government forces since they crossed into the rebel-held areas of the city in October. Abdulrahman al-Mashi, spokesman for the Mwatana Organisation for Human Rights in Syria, said at least nine women have been raped inside the centre, which is located within the abandoned Red Crescent warehouse.
